Monsoon Season

Are your trees ready? Does it make sense to trim some now or wait and see how the trees do in the Monsoons?

- Have you had a Certified Arborist inspect your trees?
- When was the last time you had the canopy of your trees thinned out?
- How strong is the root system?
- Are there any splits in the trunks or limbs?

Consider this: average price to trim a large tree ($95 to $125) average price to remove a downed or damaged tree ($2500 to $3500) that's if it doesn't hit anything on its way down.

These are just a few of the things you need to be able to answer before you decide if you can afford to not trim your trees.

Never allow anyone to trim your tree's who proposes topping your trees to fix a problem. Topping leads to problems later in the trees life and is prohibited by industry standards.

Trees are a very valuable landscape asset here in Phoenix (shade and cleaner air). So you may want to consider spending a little money on them now so they are here for future generations.

Landscape Safety

Try to stay away from large trees during a Monsoon Storm. If there is ever a tree down and it looks like power lines came down with it keep away and call APS, SRP or just call 911.

What to Watch For Next Month

Turf dethatching is the process used to remove the excess thatch, the matted layer of dead plant material that builds up next to the soil at the base of the lawn. If not removed, the build up of thatch can prevent new grass from flourishing.
